Bulldog FCU Earns Top Ranking Among Maryland Credit Unions

HAGERSTOWN, MD – Bulldog Federal Credit Union is thrilled to have the opportunity to thank their loyal members for voting them into the top 5 credit unions in the state of Maryland according to Forbes Magazine.

Bulldog FCU ranks #2, despite being the youngest and the smallest institution on the recently released 2019 list, with half the staff of the next largest credit union in Maryland's top 5.

While he's honored to receive such prestigious acclaim, BFCU President David Barrett is not surprised by it. "We are lean, efficient and focused on delivering the most value that we can for our members' investment in us. They trust us with their money, and we do our very best to make the most of it for them," Barrett said. "I'm grateful that our members took the opportunity to express their loyalty on such a respected public platform. They've shown that despite our size, we deliver the products and services that allow us to run with the big dogs," he added.

Forbes Magazine partnered with market research firm Statista to survey more than 25,000 U.S. customers for their opinions on their current and former banking relationships. Financial institutions were scored on overall recommendations and satisfaction as well as on trust, terms and conditions, branch services, digital services, and financial advice. Overall, 182 credit unions and 149 banks earned the best-in-state designation, or just 3.1% of the total number of U.S. financial institutions.

Founded in 1968 by employees at Mack Trucks' Hagerstown facility, Bulldog Federal Credit Union is now a $179 million member-owned financial institution with 6 convenient branches serving more than 24,000 members who live or work in Washington County, Maryland.
